History & Philosophy

As one of California's longest running boys basketball camps, the Dick Edwards' Basketball Team Camp for Boys, was founded in 1972 by the late Coach Dick Edwards. He was one of California's most successful high school coaches during the late 1950's and early 1960's. While at the helm of Yreka and El Camino High Schools he garnered an impressive winning record of 83 percent over six seasons.

His Nine years at the University of Pacific, from 1963-1972, achieved a 160-62 record which included four conference championships and three NCAA appearances.

Edwards' Camp Philosophy, has stood the test of time: to teach the basics of basketball; to integrate the coaching staff with the campers and to teach and coach EVERY camper, everyday with maximum effort. Today this philosophy is embraced by the team camp concept of bringing coaches and their players together to work and improve as a TEAM, both on and off the court.
